Feedback

PA Development

Components of Feedback and communicating your assessment decisions

Aspects of Feedback	Desired Learner Response
Personal / social comments	Learner to feel valued and aware of development in professional and social norms
Assessment of competency	Learner clear about their development and competency (eg whether they have met or are close to required competency)
Illustration or examples to support assessment decision	Learner clear about what supervisors saw to identify their development and competency
Development Guidance to suggest performance change is needed	Awareness that development is needed
Informative Guidance to suggest how the performance change could be achieved	Awareness of what to do to develop competency (eg repeated practice of procedure)

Model for Feedforward

Identify

it is important that your learner is clear about what you are feeding back on

Illustrate

to show specific aspects that show what you mean in their own practice

Guidance

to ensure that we are not just commenting on the past, include what future experiences or learning should take place

Quality feedback

Identify

Describe, Explain or Illustrate

Future direction / Feedforward and Guidance

The Practice Supervisor tells you:

- » Student does not seem to be the right level for a second year
- » When you press him, he says her knowledge of common drugs and has no idea of their side effects
- » How can this be conveyed to the learner? Identify approaches that would ensure a better learner experience

Practice supervisor feedback

- » Mark demonstrates a kind and compassionate manner when communicating with patients and relatives. He has undertaken a number of medication rounds and always follows the five rights of drug administration. Mark is able to confidently explain the pharmacodynamics and side effects of 4 of the 5 medications identified in his learning outcomes. Mark admits he finds insulin difficult to understand and we have therefore agreed that he should spend a day with the diabetes specialist nurse to help his learning in this area. This has been arranged for next Tuesday.
