Family Interventions for Adults

Foundation level training in Family Therapy and Systemic Practice

Introduction to Family Interventions, Application to Practice for Psychosis, Dementia and other Health Challenges

Course Outline

This is a short course, accredited by the Association for Family Therapy and Systemic Practice (AFT) at Foundation Level, and preferred provider of FI by Health Education England. It comprises two 15-credit modules at Level 6 or 7.

To complete the course and receive AFT accreditation students must complete both modules.

Intended course benefits

On completion staff will be able to:

- ✓ Deliver family and carer interventions in and across the relevant pathways: to facilitate family meetings, discuss the impact of dementia and mental health challenges on family; improve communication and problem-solving
- ✓ Have increased capacity to deliver psychological interventions recommended in national guidance and research literature
- ✓ Collaboratively work with families to support client and family experience and recovery
- ✓ Improve service efficiencies through better longer-term outcomes e.g. reduce relapse in people with psychosis; improve wellbeing, and reduce use of inpatient and residential care
- ✓ Be an additional resource for other staff, through co-working and sharing of family and systemic theories and practices
- ✓ Use the course as evidence towards revalidation or evidencing CPD

Family Interventions for Adults

Foundation level training in Family Therapy and Systemic Practice

Introduction to Family Interventions, Application to Practice for Psychosis, Dementia and other Health Challenges

Course Delivery

- 12 taught days from Sept 2018 – July 2019
- 10 (2 hour) group supervision sessions from Dec 2018 – Sept 2019
- Written assessments for each module and supervisor feedback for second module
- Additional reading - assigned reading prior to each teaching day
- Experience of working with at least two families
- Two x 15 credit modules at level 6 (final year undergraduate level) or level 7 (Masters level) from University of Surrey - you must register for these modules with the School of Health Sciences, University of Surrey
- Systemic and psychosocial intervention approaches
- Teaching days combine lecture, individual and small group work, discussion, role play and presentations
- Accredited by AFT (Association of Family Therapy and Systemic Practice) at Foundation Level

Please note: all students will need to practice alongside another family worker for the practice component of module 2 (from January to summer 2019). We recommend that the co-worker should be another student on the course, so applicants will find it advantageous to apply in pairs.

Applicants not working in an NHS setting where they can carry out family interventions with local field supervision will need to see families as part of a clinical placement with Sussex Partnership NHS Foundation Trust with an honorary contract. If you will need a clinical placement, please contact the course organisers at an early stage to discuss this.
