Stationery Selection

Save the Date Cards
Ideal to send out to your guests to inform them of the date of your big day before you send out your invitations. These can also be a good place to share the details of your wedding website. Save the Date Cards can be sent out a year or more in advance.

Wedding Day Invitations
It's best to send invitations out at least six weeks before the wedding. Details to add include date, time and venue of the ceremony and reception, dress code and a reply address. You may wish to enclose maps or wedding list details. Order one per household with a few extras to allow for errors if handwriting.

Evening Invitations
Matching evening invitations can be sent to additional guests who will not be present at the wedding ceremony.

Extra Invitations
Would you like to invite some special people to take a role in your wedding (Bridesmaids/men, Best Man/Woman, Groomsmen/women, Flower Girl/Boy, Ring Bearer etc.)? Before the big day you might have some other events planned like Hen parties and Stag do's that you will need invites for.

Reply Cards
Reply cards make it quick and simple for your guests to respond. It can be helpful to give guests a deadline for their reply.

Order of Service
A detailed programme of your ceremony, allowing guests to follow any chosen prayers, readings and hymns. For a personal touch you could include names of the bridal party and officiant, quotes or poems, tributes to loved ones and a thank you to your guests.

Menu Cards
Matching menu cards provide your guests with a list of the wedding fayre and can include the toasts.

Place Cards
Traditionally used to indicate where each guest should be seated at the reception.

Table plan
When your guests arrive at your reception venue this will help them find their seats.

Thank You Cards
A thoughtful and convenient way to thank your guests for sharing your day and for any presents you may have received.

"I am thoroughly delighted with my invites and very impressed with the quality, value and service received."
