

The Early Career Researcher Wiki (ECRWiki)

The ECRWiki is a place for ECRs to share and gather key information all in one place. If you want to know about research at Surrey, teaching, practical information, what facilities are available and much more, you can use the search box on the page or navigate the menus on the left to find what you're looking for.

How to access the Wiki

You can find the Wiki at the following web address:

<https://ecrwiki.surrey.ac.uk/>

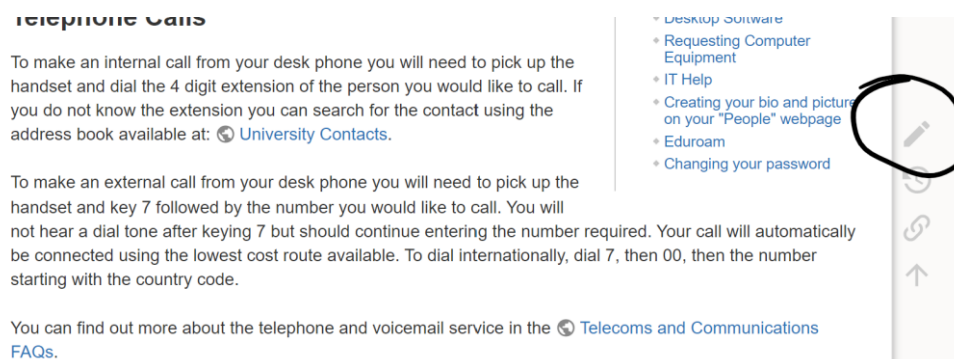

To log in, please:

1. Make sure that you are either on the University campus network and/or on Global Protectr VPN. If you are not sure how to set up Global Protect, please refer to the IT Services pages here.
2. You should now see the login page. Do not enter any username or password. Instead, just click on the big black button marked "Surrey Account":

By ECRs for ECRs

If you can't find the information you're looking for on the Wiki, once you have found it we would be very grateful if you could please add it to this wiki site using the "edit this page" button to the right of each page (it looks like a pencil):

The ECRWiki will help you find the information when you need it again and help others. If none of the existing pages seem relevant, you can also set up new page(s). Please see the Wiki Help! page for further information on how to do this. It is better to add links to existing information wherever possible rather than to duplicate it. If you find a dead-link, please do update/fix it using the edit button!

Finally, note that each page on the Wiki has an ECR Representative who is in charge of editorial (listed at the bottom of each page). They will make sure that the content is in the right place(s) and keep pages neat and tidy. So please don't worry too much about where content goes – simply add the content you need!