

ESRC Seminar Series, 2013-2015.

Older Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Trans People: Minding the Knowledge Gaps

Seminar Three: Thursday January 23rd 2014

'Older LGBT people - intersections of ethnicity, culture and religion'

Series Outline

Organisers: Andrew King (PI) (University of Surrey), Kathryn Almack (University of Nottingham), Yiu-Tung Suen (Oxford University/Chinese University of Hong Kong) and Sue Westwood (Keele University).

Central aim: To bring academics together with older LGBT individuals and advocacy groups, LGBT activists, policy-makers, service providers and third-sector organisations to explore major gaps in current knowledge and research concerning older (fifty years or over) lesbian, gay, bisexual and trans (LGBT) people.

Six seminars: To address identified gaps which include: older bisexual people's lives; intergenerational issue; older trans people's experiences; intersections of ethnicity, culture and religion in older LGBT people's lives; economics, resources and social networks; health and social care.

Final conference: The seminar series will close with a final conference to generate future work to sustain networks, ideas and action arising out of the seminars.

Seminar outline

The seminar address the complex intersections of ethnicity, culture and religion in the lives of older lesbian, gay, bisexual and trans (LGBT) people's lives that, to date, have received relatively little attention.
